

Heart Healthy Diet

- Decrease: Saturated Fat, Hydrogenated Fat, and Trans-Fat

Heart healthy food choices, exercise and weight control all help prevent and treat heart disease.

Saturated fat, hydrogenated fat, and trans-fat are linked to an increased risk for heart disease. A heart healthy diet is low in these fats and includes moderate amounts of healthy fats.

When it comes to your weight, all fats are equally high in calories.
When it comes to your heart, some fats and oils are better than others.

Guidelines for a Heart Healthy Diet

Fats

- Replace saturated, hydrogenated, and trans-fats with heart healthy oils in food preparation, cooking, and at the table.
- Choose vegetable oils such as canola, olive, peanut, soy, and corn oils, instead of butter, lard, shortening, palm and coconut oils.
- Choose margarines that do not contain trans-fats.

Meats and Proteins

- Choose leaner cuts of meat such as loin or round.
- Choose meats that are not marbled with fat and trim visible fat before cooking.
- Limit high-fat meats such as hot dogs, sausages, salami, ribs, bologna, and bacon.
- Remove skin from poultry.
- Consider eating more vegetarian meals. Try tofu, lentils, beans, nuts, and soy meat replacements such as soy burgers, and vegetarian sausages and hot dogs.

Dairy

- Use low fat or nonfat version of dairy products such as milk, yogurt, sour cream, cream cheese and cottage cheese.
- Buy reduced fat or low fat versions of your favorite cheeses. Look for 2% cheeses. Mozzarella and ricotta are naturally lower in fat.
- Limit cream, cream sauces, and creamed soups.

More Helpful Tips

- Read Nutrition Facts labels on food packages. Choose foods with low amounts of saturated fat and avoid trans-fats.
- When reading labels on meat and cheese (per ounce)
 - 0-3 grams of fat = lean
 - 4-7 grams of fat = medium fat
 - 8 or more grams of fat = high fat
- Avoid deep-fried foods.
- Drain and discard visible fat when cooking.
- Baking, broiling, boiling, poaching, and steaming are low fat cooking methods.
- Use vegetable oil sprays to coat pans and trays for cooking or baking.
