Alcohol and Diabetes: A Look at Your Liquor

Facts about alcohol:

- Alcohol is high in calories and low in nutrients. When the liver breaks down alcohol, it turns into fat which can cause weight gain and raise blood fat levels.
- Alcohol may increase the risk of low blood sugar in people taking certain diabetes medications. Normally, the liver releases glucose to maintain blood sugar levels. But when you drink liquor, the liver is busy breaking the alcohol down, so it does a poor job of releasing glucose into the bloodstream. This can lead to a drop in blood sugar levels if you are drinking alcohol on an empty stomach.

Safe drinking tips:

- Check with your medical provider to see if it is safe for you to drink alcohol.
- If you choose to drink alcohol, limit the number of drinks to two per day if you are a man and one per day if you are a woman. One serving size equals 12 ounces of beer, 4-5 ounces of wine, or 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> ounces of distilled spirits (such as rum, gin, whiskey, etc.)
- If you have diabetes:
  - Wear your medical ID bracelet at all times.
  - Always consume alcohol with a meal that contains carbohydrates. Never skip meals or substitute alcohol for a meal.
  - Carry a carbohydrate source like glucose tablets, fruit juice, or hard candy just in case of a low blood sugar.
  - Test your blood sugar more often. The effects of alcohol can make it harder for you to detect symptoms of a low blood sugar.
